Dear Anthony,

Just a note confirming that the cullet we have been recovering from rejected laminates has been approved for use by our two principal customers, with the comment that it is suitable for use in all their applications and amongst the cleanest cullet they receive from any source.

The product is going back into glass manufacture and glass bead manufacturing operations. The quality of the recovered material is beyond their expectations and the coated product has no affect their operations.

Furthermore, the product we have separated for relamination has been successfully relaminated by a number of our customers and delivered to the end user without fault or complaint.

Regards,
